

Prosperity

Bringing prosperity into your life can be viewed as a matter of putting or getting yourself into a river or stream or channel of abundance and prosperity.

This flow or channel of prosperity is in fact a spiritual river of life. This 'life' is associated with the infinite creative potential of the universe... not to be considered inert or inanimate, but a living force with intelligence, not affectively describable in human terms concepts and/or perceptions.

The spirit of life, is the spirit of life which "creates". This creative potential in affect has unlimited resources at its disposal. Not only is it awesome through its wondrous potential, it also has attributes of love and compassion as it longs to deliver enrichment and fulfilment (spiritual & mundane) to the sentient beings of the cosmos. It is indeed co-operative with the good and noble thoughts and aspirations of those that seek to participate in life as fully as possible. The goal to attain success whilst utilising the path of daily duties and honest labour, can always be enhanced by employing the spiritual principles of abundance and prosperity.

INTENTION and FAITH

As with many aspects of spiritual attainment's and advancements, INTENTION is a keyword which should describe a strong will, motivation or inner force in wanting to attain a desired outcome.

Intention also has meaning mirrored in the words 'Will' and 'Motivation'. The power necessary to bring a goal to fruition is amplified by the merit of that which we seek.

Things you "truly need" will inherently have more power to sustain and drive you, as it is common for events to become drawn out and sometimes painfully protracted. Lengthy delays amid uncertainties can sap ones inner strength. Although there is much required of the individual desiring to create prosperity, the faith required to sit back and let the infinite creative potential do its part for the welfare of your life can be easily shaken. Thus, we will continue to empower ourselves by identifying our needs and successfully employing the principals of accessing the channels of prosperity.

Each time we are successful, (no matter how grand or humble the goal), the benefit of each experience will nurture our tenacity and make us more resolute. There will be solidarity amid the times of difficulty, trial, and doubt.

It should be noted that our "wants" as opposed to our needs, will be more vulnerable to unsuccessful manifestation, since they may not be properly aligned or identified with the path our lives are taking. If we think in any small way that we might be able to do without these 'wants', then herein lies the way for lethargy and inertia to creep in and overcome the goal. A such, much more energy is required for the power of prosperity to deliver our 'wants'.

If you often find conflict associated in the identification of your wants and needs, then it is most probable that your life's direction has not been properly realised, understood or identified.

Although the action of prosperity may be likened to the flowing of a river, the participation by an individual in the principles of prosperity is not to be likened to someone in a boat moving along by the power of that river alone, that is, no self-effort.

In continuing to define the analogy of an individual's participation, it would be better to describe the merging of the river with the individual... that is, a unity of forces.

The unity of the individuals creative effort along side the infinite creative potential of 'Life', allows for a partnership and exchange of energies. The inflowing prosperity into the individuals life is transformed and re-created by an outpouring of prosperity as the individual practices "Selfless Giving".

This exchange allows for the infinite creative force to renew and re-manifest itself as prosperity once again but in a different form. The recipient of the act of selfless giving by the first individual, is seeing something new and wonderful, (not as a second-hand or even a third-hand gesture as might be seen by over-viewing the process as described by this textual illustration).

Thus, for prosperity to manifest in your life, it is vital that energy must also be outgoing as genuine gifts of the heart. Such a gift will be enveloped in good will and there would most definitely be contentment, if not love and joy in the giving. By your giving, it can be considered that prosperity is now manifesting itself in someone else's life.

To consider that "to receive is to give", how might we judge the merit of our giving? How do we know that our giving is of a correct proportion of the prosperity that has inflowed to our own lives?

The measure of our giving is recognisable in a number of ways. Firstly, we need to be able to 'Peacefully' recognise an opportunity to give, and be happy in readiness to see the manifestation of prosperity outside of your life. When we give, our fist must not cling to the gift as it leaves our possession, and there must be no sense of loss. If we open our hearts and minds to the benevolence of 'Life', along with 'its' want for us to have freely; and if we can accept this generosity of 'Life', we need to consider ourselves (for the purpose of the act of giving), to be that very same generous, loving and benevolent spirit which derives only happiness in the creation of prosperity.

Equivalences or comparisons of physical value or worth, or monetary value will never be an indication of worth. Since the manifestation of prosperity is essentially a gift of spirit, the spiritual motivation of the giver is the true measure of worth. Since a rich man may be a spiritual pauper, and a poor man a spiritual king, the variation of gifts will be almost incalculable.

DRAWING or ATTRACTING THE CREATIVE FORCE.

2 factors need to be considered in preparing yourself for prosperity

- Intention
- Visualisation

Intention has been discussed as a strong will, motivation or inner force in wanting to attain a desired outcome, but this is empowered tremendously by an ability to create and sustain a visual image of a desired outcome.

Although this is an exercise on a purely Mental level, the ability to define the visual image with great detail will act to uphold the faith required to see you through the times prior to manifestation. Remember, it is faith that allows you to persist and to endure. It is faith that keeps you focused. It is faith that protects you from uncertainty and worry. Such things are the causes of vital mental energies to dissipate, leading to an erosive or undermining effect of the creative process.

Also keep in mind that Faith is not just a form of believing with inherent inner conflict and doubt, but is derived from an intelligent understanding of spiritual principles. As such, mature faith establishes you in confident peace, and your patience naturally manifests... there is harmony with the forces not native to the physical world.

This visualisation is not only the mental representation of a physical object; it must also encompass the changes that would happen to you and your life once the manifestation becomes complete. That is, you must anticipate and cultivate the way your thinking would change upon obtaining the desired outcome.

In essence, you must believe that you already have it.

Through this process, you are attempting to create or at least mold the future (or future circumstances) through the power of thought and good will. It is your INTENTION that is the key to your power... and when that intention is noble, there is even more power in the creative process.

Be Peaceful,
Adrian
